

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system and a method for a user interface that presents items to a user in accordance with default groupings. The interface includes a filter selection area that provides a listing of one or more filters that may be selected by a user. Each of the filters has an associated default grouping. The interface further includes an item presentation area that displays filtered items to the user in accordance with a default grouping associated with a selected filter.